2:47 AM

you up?

had a bad one tonight. bus vs pole vs pedestrian on S Main at Third. pedestrian went out on the helicopter, looked really bad

2:49 AM

oh no. driver ok?

2:51 AM

physically fine. RPD has him. PBT was over. keeler, the guy who bid the 512 owl block

2:52 AM

keeler?? he's been on owl forever. no way

2:54 AM

i know. and here's the thing that's bugging me — looking at my console the pin didn't line up with where a 512 should be at 02:0X. i think the guy was off-book, running a different loop. no timepoint on my board that matches which is going to be a whole other conversation with safety in the morning if that's real

2:57 AM

that's ugly. if he's off route on top of blowing a PBT that's a different animal

2:58 AM

yep. i already sent an email to the supervisor list w/ marlene cc'd flagging it. wanted it in writing before i clock out. said i'd pull the block sheet in the morning to confirm

3:01 AM

smart. cya first. how many pax?

3:02 AM

2 hurt on board plus the pedestrian. maybe a third pax who walked away, i didn't get a clean count yet

3:03 AM

jesus. get some sleep when you can

3:04 AM

yeah right. paperwork is going to eat me alive next week. draft IR, DOT part 655 packet, the works

11:42 AM

finally horizontal. can't stop thinking about the pedestrian. anyone heard anything?

12:18 PM

nothing on my end. rivergate sentinel has a blurb online but no name

12:20 PM

i keep replaying it. if keeler was where he was supposed to be that stop wouldn't even have been on his path at that hour

and if he was off-book on top of impaired — i don't want to think about what that does to us on the insurance side

12:34 PM

not your call to make on that stuff wes. write what you saw, let risk sort it

12:36 PM

i know i know

still no update on the pedestrian condition. i asked ops but they haven't heard back from the hospital

8:14 AM

critical last i heard. that's what dispatch chatter was saying yesterday afternoon

8:15 AM

yeah. bad bad bad

9:47 PM

back on shift tonight. probably will get pulled into a chat about the incident. i'm just going to point them to the email i sent saturday morning

6:22 AM

just clocked out. marlene wants a sit-down wed. i also need to hand the draft IR to safety today for the final version

6:24 AM

what are you putting in it?

6:26 AM

what i saw. times, pax count as best i've got, the PBT number from the officer. i'm going to leave the route/scope question to safety and ops — i flagged it in the email, that's on the record now

6:27 AM

good. don't editorialize in the IR

6:29 AM

i won't. it's a draft anyway, okonkwo's going to redo it once she has AVL and everything else in front of her

7:48 AM

ok. i owe myself a correction

turns out block sheet says he was on 512, so scratch what i said saturday. pullout 22:15, scheduled downtown pass right around 02:0X. that lines up with where he was

7:50 AM

so not off-book after all

7:51 AM

apparently not. i think what threw me was the console screen at 3am — the pin was on main just north of third and my brain said “512 shouldn’t be there yet” but it should have been, i had the loop direction backwards in my head

going to tell marlene today. and i should probably send a follow-up on the email chain too so the record isn’t sitting there with the wrong impression

7:54 AM

yeah do that. that email is going to end up in front of a lawyer at some point, don’t leave it uncorrected

7:55 AM

100%. lesson learned about firing off “flags” at 3am on 4 hours sleep

8:12 AM

happens to everyone. the PBT number is the story anyway not the route

8:13 AM

M

Marco D. — Dispatch ›

yeah. that part is not going anywhere

6:41 PM

talked to marlene. she has the AVL track and the run schedule in front of her already, she'd already reconciled it. she was fine, told me to just make sure the final IR reflects the route accurately and to not repeat the off-book thing in writing

6:43 PM

smart woman

6:44 PM

yep

9:12 AM

btw the pedestrian is still in ICU. name is reyes. that's all i've heard

9:14 AM

damn
